

Short Description

In a world full of wonder, both natural and man-made, it's often difficult to choose where to visit first to see all of that country's beauties. Most of said beauty envelops the rich history and vivid culture that makes countries unique and instantly recognizable, and The Republic of Macedonia is no different. With so many wonders to see: historical and cultural, famous and more niche, it can prove difficult to navigate the land without a proper guide. Using publicly available data found on OpenStreetMap, our web-application looks to accomplish just that. We aim to provide users with an immersive experience that explores the diverse facets of the country's past.

Our new web application seeks to provide users with an immersive and enlightening experience, delving into the many aspects of Macedonia's past. Users will have the invaluable opportunity to explore and study cultural and historical sites and places of interest scattered throughout the country. The comprehensive database maintained in the application will show a wealth of information about the past ruins, UNESCO World Heritage sites, museums, traditional events and more.

At the heart of this virtual exploration is an interactive map, designed to be the guiding compass for users eager to uncover the historical and cultural treasures of Macedonia. With the map as their virtual companion, users can embark on a journey through the geographical classifications of these heritage sites, allowing them to appreciate not only their aesthetic beauty but also to delve into the profound historical significance each holds.